Craft previously visited North Carolina and Kentucky in recent weeks. The Memphis native had to pass through the deadline in mid-April for college underclassmen to withdraw from the draft. The 6-foot-5 forward averaged a career-high 21.9 points and 10.6 rebounds per game last season and, at 24 years old, is entering his senior year. Craft was a backcourt teammate of former Bearcats star Kevin Knox and fellow underclassmen Moritz Wagner and Ray Spalding at Cincy and would be a much-needed boost to North Carolina's offense. The Tar Heels have a number of talented underclassmen in the draft. If Craft joins those players, it could push just about any mid-major player who may have been under the radar to enter next season. About Me I have been married to an amazing man for 33 years. We have 2 children and 2 labradors. Professionally, I have been a PE teacher and a graphic designer. These days, I love the housework, sewing, gardening, decorating and cooking. I am always on the go trying to keep my home looking pretty, my husband thinking straight, my children safe and healthy and myself stress-free.
